

We would like to thank our Advisory Committees for going above and beyond in their help
with curriculum steering,
helping students with their projects,
and constant support for our programs.

We would also like to thank our industry representatives for attending this event and being part of our panel.

We really appreciate everything you do!

To all of our guests, thank you for sharing this day with us in support of our students.

SUPER SHOWCASE JUDGES

Patrick Hoffman

Patrick Hoffman graduated from The Evergreen State College with a degree in fine arts geared towards video production. During his last quarter of school, he was recruited by The Porcupine Media and shortly after was given full control of the company. He's been in a variety of film festivals, has experience with how they're operated and dreams to run my own film festival within the next 3 years.

Eric Belgau

Eric Belgau is a screenwriter. His first (terrible) movie was produced in 2001. He's been working professionally since, producing original and contracted scripts and performing high-leverage rewrites.

Jimmie Myers

Jimmie made the transition from the film industry to the games industry at Naughty Dog, where he shipped Uncharted 4 as an editor. He then spent many years working at Infinity Ward on various Call of Duty projects, including Modern Warfare 2019. Now he is the Cinematics Director at Bungie, where he leads a creative team to produce CG, real time, and motion graphics pieces for Destiny 2 and more.

*Every year, student teams
across the state are given a prompt by the Advanced Media Entertainment Society and must develop their project
within the same two month time frame.*

This year's prompt is:

"Artificial... but not Intelligent"

*Teams competed at the local level
for the right to advance to this Super Showcase event.*
